Editorial Board

Assistant Professor Amy Blair,
English Department, Marquette University

Associate Professor Judith Bean,
Department of English, Texas Woman’s University

Professor Elizabeth Fox-Genovese,
Department of History, Emory University

Assistant Professor Alison Piepmeier,
Women’s and Gender Studies, College of Charleston

Professor Nancy Theriot,
Women’s and Gender Studies, University of Louisville

Laura Micham,
Director of the Sallie Bingham Center for Women’s History and Culture,
Duke University

www.amdigital.co.uk        E-mail: info@amdigital.co.uk
This digital collection is an unparalleled resource for the study of American social and cultural history, providing immediate access to rare primary source material from the Sallie Bingham Center for Women’s History, Duke University and The New York Public Library.

It comprises thousands of fully searchable images (alongside manually double-keyed transcriptions) of monographs, pamphlets, periodicals, and broadsides, addressing 19th and early 20th century political, social and gender issues, religion, race, education, employment, marriage, sexuality, home and family life, health, and popular pastimes.

Key Features
- Full-text search
- No overlap with Gerritsen, Shaw-Shoemaker and other such digital resources
- Minimal overlap with texts in the History of Women microfilm project
- Highly accurate transcriptions in the original layout available for every page
- Archival back-up on DVDs with all the images, HTML transcriptions and XML code
- MARC21 records provided

Contextual essays include:
- Research Strategies on Women, Popular Culture and Family Life in America, 1800-1920
- Women Talking about Themselves: Changing Discourse in American Advice Literature
- Women: Literature, the Body and Public Life
- A Divided Society: Class, Race, Sex, Religion and Education in America, 1800-1920
- Childhood, Health and the Family in Nineteenth and Early Twentieth Century America

Addressing themes such as politics, sexuality, health, morality, religion, race, gender, education, family life, and employment.

For a free trial visit our website at www.amdigital.co.uk